DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

2. The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because it uses the terms "disclosed is" and describes features which are not proper in the abstract (being inexpensive). Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Barker US 3,523,676. Barker discloses a normally closed solenoid-operated valve having a cylindrical sleeve, a stationary element 13 provided at one end of said stationary sleeve, a movable element 18 slidably inserted in said sleeve to face said stationary element and provided at an external surface thereof with a communication groove 19 which axially extends between axial opposite ends thereof for permitting the flow of operating fluid; and an electromagnetic coil 3 for exciting said stationary element and said movable element; said solenoid-operated valve having a closed wall (Fig. 1) provided on at one of a stationary element end surface of said stationary element facing said movable element and a movable element end surface of said movable element facing said stationary element for defining a damper chamber therein; and a fixed throttle 19 for making said damper chamber to communicate with said communication groove when said stationary element end surface and said movable element end surface closes said damper chamber as a result of said movable element excited by said electromagnetic coil being moved toward said stationary element.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 2-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The primary reason for the allowance of claims 2-5 is the annular shim interposed between the stationary and movable end surfaces for defining the damper chamber and having a dent groove, not overlapping or part opens in combination with the device as claimed. The primary reason for the allowance of claims 6-7 is the closed wall having an annular convex portion and defining a dent portion encircled by the convex portion.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Toshio, Parodi, Wang, Hell, Hara, and Goosens disclose solenoid valves with communication grooves and a fixed throttle.
